ARMENIAN TORPEDOED

Large British Liner Is Sunk.

SCORE OF AMERICANS LOST

News Creates a Big Sensation in Washington.

Washington, July 1.—The Dominion freight liner Armenian, flying the British flag, and carrying mules from Newport News, Va., to England, was torpedoed and sunk Monday night by the German submarine U-38, off Cornwall, England, and a score of American muleteers aboard are reported lost, according to messages received by the state department from Consul John S. Armstrong, Jr., at Bristol. Twenty-nine men in all were lost and ten injured.

The news created a sensation in official quarters, as it was the first case of loss of American lives since the sinking of the Lusitania. The gravity of the incident, however, and the action of the Washington government depends almost entirely on whether the Armenian was chartered by the British government and was in fact a transport of war, aboard which Americans would sail at their own risk, or whether it was an unarmed merchantman.

In the latter case, even though carrying contraband, this government would hold that the ship should have been subjected to visit and search and those aboard transferred to a place of safety before the destruction of the vessel was attempted.

Officials Await All Facts.

In the absence of information on these points officials declined to say what effect the sinking of the Armenian would have on pending negotiations between the United States and Germany. Immediate inquiry was directed, however, to Ambassador Page at London to procure more details and Ambassador Gerard will be instructed to inquire of the German admiralty as to its report.

From the messages received it appears that, in addition to the torpedo, at least one shot was fired from a disappearing rifle. The consul's report said the wireless house was "taken by second shot." It was not made clear whether the Armenian was first ordered to halt and resisted capture, requiring a second shot, or whether the submarine attacked without warning. The fact that the number of the submarine was given indicated that it had come to the surface to make the attack.

Mules are contraband of war, according to all the lists of the belligerents, so there can be no doubt as to the contraband character of the Armenian's cargo. Officials will make an effort to learn, however, whether the vessel was armed and whether it was a part of the British naval forces, before the opinion of the state department on the case will be disclosed.

News Sent to President.

All dispatches received were promptly telegraphed to President Wilson at Cornish, N. H., and Secretary Lansing at Amherst, Mass.

The messages from Consul Armstrong did not show clearly just how many Americans were lost. In his list of Americans missing, he named twenty muleteers, who were unaccounted for, but later telegrams spoke of Dr. J. S. Vico, a Porto Rican, and three negroes as having been picked up by a submarine and other survivors by a Belgian trawler and transferred to two British destroyers which brought them to Bristol.

Official advices here were that the Armenian had been chartered by the Leyland line to the Dominion line, which is understood to have a contract for the shipment of mules for the British government and has made many trips in the mule trade in the past few months.

Officials here will inquire whether the vessel carried any British officers and what measure of control the British government had over the ship.

Armenian Was Unarmed.

It is taken for granted that the Armenian was unarmed, as such vessels usually carry no guns of any description. Even if it actually had been under charter by the British government there is an understanding between the United States and Great Britain that none of the latter's ships shall be given clearance from American ports if armed.

Officials were inclined to the view that the case would hinge largely upon whether the Armenian was given warning and whether it attempted to escape after being ordered to stop.

GEN. VON FALKENHAYN.

Austrian Emperor Honors
German Chief of Staff.

General Erich von Falkenhayn, chief of the German army, has been appointed honorary colonel of eight Austrian infantry regiments by Emperor Francis Joseph in recognition of his services in the Galician campaign.

The right of a vessel to attempt to escape upon sighting a hostile warship was upheld in the last American note to Germany, in referring to the case of the Falaba, and at the same time it was held that after the vessel had stopped upon warning it was not subject to attack until persons aboard had been removed.

From the fact that two shots were fired at the Armenian when the submarine came to the surface some officials think the ship may not have heeded the warning to stop. If this should prove to be the case the officials think subsequent torpedoing could be justified, as it is the duty of the captain of an unarmed ship to yield to capture when actually halted or take the consequences of resistance.

VESSEL NOT UNDER CHARTER TO BRITAIN.

New York, July 1.—W. W. Jeffries, general manager of International Mercantile Marine company, said the steamship Armenian was not under charter to the British government and that it was a peaceful merchantman. The Armenian, he added, was making the voyage under the operation of the Leyland line and it carried a general cargo of American origin.

MEXICAN CAPITAL AT MERCY OF MOBS

Rioting and Looting Unchecked, Says Report.

Washington, July 1.—Desperate conditions in Mexico City, with unchecked mobs rioting and looting, are described in dispatches cabled to the United States government from Vera Cruz by a courier, who left the Mexican capital Friday, June 25.

When the courier started practically the entire garrison had been withdrawn to join the Zapata army on the outskirts of the city opposing the attacking Carranza force under General Pablo Gonzales.

Gonzales had been driven back with considerable loss and was waiting for reinforcements from Vera Cruz before renewing the assault.

No mention was made of attacks upon foreigners, so officials assumed they were safe. Many stores had been looted, the dispatch said, and great mobs were rioting and seizing food wherever it was to be found.

The Mexican capital has been cut off from communication with the outside world by wire and rail for twelve days.

IS ACQUITTED OF MURDER

Montana Man Pleads Self-Defense in Slaying Trial.

Plentywood, Mont., June 30.—Cecil Chapman, accused of murdering Ben Day of Dooley, Mont., was acquitted in district court here.

Chapman pleaded self-defense in a quarrel at Dooley, Dec. 30.

What the Balkan States and Italy Want for Peace or War

This map unravels the remarkable and complicated situation in the Balkans, where Bulgaria, Greece and Rumania have been talking about joining one side or the other in the great war ever since it began. The same scramble for territory which brought about the second Balkan war after the allies there had beaten Turkey is seen in the present case.

If these nations can get their price they will fight; if not they may remain at peace. Just the present status of the situation, the demands and counter demands are known only to a half dozen chancellors of Europe.

The black portions of the map show the territory demanded so far as information has been given to the public.

Serbia does not demand Croatia and Slavonia, but insists that these countries be taken away from Austria-Hungary and be made independent states. Both Serbia and Rumania ask for the little triangle above Belgrade, the former country believing it needs this protection to its capital and the latter assuring Serbia that if Rumania has it there will be no need to worry.

Rumania, now on the brink of war, makes the largest demand and if the allies will agree to back up her claims she will come to their aid. Albania, if present plans work out, will disappear and be parcelled off to Montenegro, Italy and Greece.

The latter country is also to get a considerable strip of the coast of Turkey in Asia, Italy to have a few of the outlying islands. It will be seen that the co-operation of Bulgaria in the war can only be purchased at the expense of Serbia and Greece, but Bulgarian statesmen say that if they are to fight against the Turks they must have the territory indicated for their military operations.

MAKE PROGRESS AGAINST TURKS

Anglo-French Forces Capture Several Trenches.

WARSHIPS AID OPERATIONS

General Hamilton Reports Results of Recent Attacks on the Gallipoli Peninsula and Declares Results Were Beyond Expectations.

London, July 1.—The text of the British official statement issued regarding the operations of the Anglo-French forces against the Dardanelles follows:

General Sir Ian Hamilton reports that the plan of operations on June 28 was to throw forward the left of his line southeast of Krithia, pivoting on a point about a mile from the sea and after advancing on the extreme left for about half a mile establish a new line facing east on the ground thus gained.

This plan entailed the capture in succession of two lines of Turkish trenches to the east of Saghir Dere and five lines of trenches to the west.

An Australian corps was ordered to co-operate by making a vigorous demonstration. The action followed at 9 a. m. with a bombardment by heavy artillery. The assistance rendered by the French in this bombardment was most valuable.

At 12:20 p. m. the field artillery opened fire to cut the wire in front of the Turkish trenches. This was effectively done and its effects on one of the enemy's trenches near the sea was great. The very accurate fire of the cruiser Talbot and the destroyers Scorpion and Wolverine succeeded in keeping down this artillery fire from that quarter.

West of Saghir Dere three lines of trenches were captured with little opposition. The trenches were full of dead Turks. Many had been buried by the bombardment. One hundred prisoners were taken.

Meet Severe Opposition.

East of the ravine the Royal Scots made a fine attack, capturing two lines of trenches which had been assigned as their objective, but the remainder of the brigade on their right met with severe opposition and was unable to go forward.

At 11:30 o'clock the Royal Fusiliers led its brigade in the second phase of the attack to the west of the ravine. The brigade advanced with great steadiness and resolution through the trenches already captured and on across the open, taking two more lines of trenches and reached the objective allotted them; the Lancashire Fusiliers inclining half to the right and forming a line to connect with our new positions east of the ravine.

The northernmost objective had now been obtained, but the Gurkhas pressing on under the cliffs captured at important knoll still further forward—actually due west of Krithia. This they fortified and held during the night, making our total gain on the left precisely 1,000 yards.

During the night the enemy made a counter attack on the furthest trenches gained, but was repulsed with heavy loss. A party of Turks which penetrated from the flank between the two lines of the captured trenches was subjected to machine gun fire at daylight and suffered heavily and the survivors surrendered.

Except for a small portion of trenches already mentioned, which still is held by the enemy, all and more than was hoped for from the operations have been gained.

On the extreme left the line has been pushed forward to a specially strong point well beyond the limit of the advance originally contemplated.

PRELATE'S CONDITION SAME

No Radical Change Is Perceptible in Archbishop Quigley.

Rochester, N. Y., July 1.—No radical change has been noted in the condition of Archbishop Quigley of Chicago, who lies at the point of death in the home of his brother, Joseph A. Quigley, chief of police of Rochester.

A gradual, though scarcely perceptible weakening, which tended to confirm the previous statements of physicians that the end was near, was noticed.

BRITISH STEAMER
SUNK BY TORPEDO.

London, July 1.—The British steamship Scottish Monarch, bound from New York for Manchester with a cargo of sugar, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine. The steamer's crew of thirty-six men took to the lifeboats.

The bride wore her traveling costume of navy blue gabardine and a hat of black milan with touches of Nile green. Her bouquet was a corsage bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

An informal reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Batell, 2544 Aldrich avenue south, following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Fitts have gone east, on a wedding trip and will be at home August 1, at Edgewood, Lake Minnetonka.

People who have impure or impoverished blood should be careful to take only a vegetable and temperance remedy such as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is and has been for over 40 years.

The first day you start to take this reliable medicine, impure germs and accumulations begin to separate in the blood and are then expelled through the eliminative organs.

In place of the impurities, the arteries and veins gradually get fresh vitalized blood and the action of this good blood on the skin means that pimples, boils, carbuncles, eczema, rash, acne and all skin blemishes will disappear. Then you must remember that when the blood is right, the liver, stomach, bowels and kidneys become healthy, active and vigorous and you will have no more trouble with indigestion, backache, headache and constipation.

Get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery today at any medicine dealers; it is a powerful blood purifier, so penetrating that it even gets at the impure deposits in the joints and carries them out of the system.

Congressman Lindbergh Writes Interestingly of His Trip Down the Mississippi in a Boat

FEW SETTLERS TO THE NORTH

If You Contemplate the Trip Take a Good Axe, Stout Pole, Little Luggage, Plenty to Eat

The Little Falls Transcript publishes the following description of the trip by Congressman Lindbergh, written by himself, which he made down the Mississippi:

Boating down the Mississippi from its source, for the first 200 miles, is very interesting as well as very vigorous. My son, 13 years of age, and I made the trip in a small boat. The intention was to come on down the river to Little Falls. We expected to make the trip in about 21 days. The distance from Elk Lake to Cass Lake direct is scarcely 40 miles, but it is more than five times that by river. It is not so much the distance that makes the trip strenuous. In addition to windfalls and other obstructions, there are a great many busy beavers that have worked 75 or 80 miles down the river. Their home is around Elk Lake and Lake Itasca, but with the state laws to protect them they are beginning to appropriate the upper Mississippi. They make trouble for a boat.

The wonderful industry of the beavers is well exemplified in a piece of work they perform on a brook between Lake Mary and Lake Itasca. Here they construct a dam each night, while the man in charge of the park tears it out each day. The beavers are in their homes and are not to be seen during the day but come out to work at night. One night we watched them begin the construction of their oft destroyed dam. They appeared about 10 o'clock and were not disturbed by a flash light that we directed upon them. The least noise made them hustle to the bottom of the waters. The next morning we found a well constructed dam, sealed almost water tight with mosses and weeds. This was torn down before noon the next day by the keeper. This re-building and tearing down process has been carried on nightly and daily for years, we were informed.

The beavers log as intelligently as the lumbermen, but for a different purpose, as we understand it. They are less particular about whose logs they get than most lumbermen are and they use them only for jam. We saw trees 14 inches in diameter that had been cut down and then cut into short lengths.

I understand several persons contemplate a Mississippi trip. Therefore a few words about it. The connecting link between Elk lake and Lake Itasca is easy to make, but it is unnecessary to go to Elk lake by boat. It is better to walk and worth walking for what one can see. Through Lake Itasca, of course, it is easy boating. The first obstruction upon entering the Mississippi proper is a beaver dam. We chopped our way through that. A little further down is a dam maintained by the state. Four miles after passing this dam the water is so shallow that it is difficult to get through, but the party in charge of the dam opened it up long enough to help flood us over that distance.

We encountered two other old dams in the first hundred miles, one of which gave us much grief, but except for that four miles we were not short of water. The main trouble we encountered was windfalls, occasional foot bridges, low wagon bridges and an occasional wire fence. Anyone contemplating this trip should be supplied with a good axe, a stout pole, a light but solid boat, as little luggage as possible, but plenty to eat, and tools with which to repair fences.

Until near Bemidji the settlers are few and far between. When found, however, they gave us a hearty reception and rendered us aid. It is wonderful how cheerful they are in their almost isolated homes. I judge it is because they look to a sure future, for northern Minnesota will soon be rich in agricultural products. All that is required is more settlers with means enough to go ahead and clear up these lands. The public is finding that out, and five or six years more I am sure will show wonderful progress up there. Every year will add to their advantages. To know that lands can be purchased from $6 to $20 per acre in this section, as good in quality as lands that are selling in other sections at from $75 to $150, and that will have equally good market facilities when there are farmers enough to make farm product purchasers seek them, is to know that a good future awaits this new section.

It is a strenuous job to make the transportation and hotel bills made it necessary to develop a player residing here.

Larson's playing ability this season is said to be far above his average form and according to published accounts in the St. Paul papers his playing with the West Side Athletics has been a feature both in the field as well as at bat.

Brainerd will need to look well to its laurels in this series as the Knispels have a string of victories that places them well up in the ranks of semi-professional ball teams. Last Sunday the West Side Athletics were beaten by the score of 7 to 4 by the Knispels who played an errorless game. "Lefty" Heimkes was invincible and held them to five scattered blows, two of which were infield hits. Heimkes pitched a phenomenal game not passing or hitting a man.

The misunderstanding with Al Victor has been patched up and he will again be seen in the black singles of the Athletics, in next Saturday's game. According to the dope Victor will pitch Saturday's game, while Bowman and Cook will do the flinging on Sunday and Monday and the fans can be assured that three of the fastest games ever played on the local diamond will be staged on July 3rd, 4th and 5th.

The line-up for the Knispels will be as follows: Marsh, 3b, Nicholson ss, Doyle rf, Larson 2b, Raddat-Fosse lf, Wassal c, O'Neill 1b, Manthey cf, Dixon-Heimkes p.

The BLACK BOX

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

Author of "The Moving Finger," "The Prince of Sinners," "Anna, the Adventuress," etc.

Novelized from the motion picture drama of the same name produced by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company. Illustrated with photographs from the motion picture production.

(Copyright, 1915, by Otis F. Wood.)

Craig turned slowly towards them. It was a strange meeting.

"It is necessary," he told them, "that you should pretend to be my friends. The chief has ordered two of his men to dismount. Their ponies are for the young ladies. There will be horses for you among the captured ones from the caravan yonder."

They all turned towards the chief, who remained a little on the outside of the circle. The professor raised his hat and spoke a few words in the Mongar language, then he turned to the others.

"I have accepted the invitation of the chief," he announced. "We had better start."

"This may not be Delmonico's," Laura remarked, a few hours later, with a little sigh of contentment, "but believe me that goat-stew and sherbet tasted better than any chicken and champagne I ever tasted."

They moved to the opening of the tent and sat looking out across the silent desert. Laura took the flap of the canvas in her hand.

"What do all these marks mean?" she asked.

"They are cabalistic signs," the professor replied, "part of the language of the tribe. They indicate that this is the guest tent, and there are a few little maxims traced upon it, extolling the virtues of hospitality."

Lenora leaned forward to where a little group of Mongars were talking together.

"I wish that beautiful girl would come and let us see her again," she murmured.

"She," the professor explained, "is the chief's daughter, Feerda, whose life Craig saved."

"And from the way she looks at him," Laura observed, "I should say she hadn't forgotten it either."

The professor held up a warning finger. The girl herself had glided to their side out of the shadows. She faced the professor. The rest of the party she seemed to ignore. She spoke slowly and in halting English.

"My father wishes to know that you are satisfied?" she said. "You have no further wants?"

"None," the professor assured her. "We are very grateful for his hospitality, Feerda."

"Won't you talk to us for a little time?" Lenora begged, leaning forward.

The girl turned suddenly to the professor and spoke to him in her own language. She pointed to the signs upon the tent, drew her finger along one of the sentences, flashed a fierce glance at them all and disappeared.

"Seems to me that we are not exactly popular with the young lady," Quest remarked. "What was she saying, professor?"

"She suspects us," the professor said slowly, "of wishing to bring evil to Craig. She pointed to a sentence upon the tent. Roughly it means 'Gratitude is the debt of hospitality.' I am very much afraid that the young lady must have been listening to our conversation."

The professor suddenly leaned forward. There was a queer change in his face. From somewhere on the other side of that soft bank of violet darkness came what seemed to be the clear, low cry of some animal.

"It is the Mongar cry of warning," he said hoarsely. "Something is going to happen."

The whole encampment was suddenly in a state of activity. The Mongars ran hither and thither, getting together their horses. The chief, with Craig by his side, was standing on the outskirts of the camp.

"Seems to me there's a move on," Quest muttered, as they rose to their feet. "I wonder if we are in it."

A moment or two later Craig approached them.

"Word has been brought to the chief," he announced, "that the Arab who escaped from the caravan has fallen in with an outpost of British soldiers. They have already started in pursuit of us. The Mongars will take refuge in the jungle, where they have prepared hiding-places. We start at once."

"What about us?" the professor inquired.

"I endeavored," Craig continued, "to persuade the chief to allow you to remain here, when the care of you would devolve upon the English soldiers. He and Feerda, however, have absolutely refused my request. Feerda has overheard some of your conversation, and the chief believes that you will betray us. You will have to come, too."

They all rose at once to their feet, and a few moments later horses were brought.

The little procession was already being formed in line. Craig approached them once more.

"You will mount now and ride in the middle of our caravan," he directed. "The chief does not trust you. If you value your lives, you will do as you are bidden."

Five Arizona Murderers In Shadow of Scaffold

(By United Press)

Phoenix, Ariz., July 1.—Before July 23 the five murderers who were saved from the Florence penitentiary gallows May 28 only by an eleventh hour reprieve will again stand in the shadow of the scaffold. The reprieves were for nine weeks' duration. By the law the men must hang before July 23.

But Governor Hunt, of Arizona, whose fight against capital punishment has saved the five from death so far, refuses to sign the necessary papers or fix the execution dates. He refuses to be a party to the executions. And the five are confident that the "big governor" will never let them hang.

May 28 the Arizona prison at Florence, was the scene of one of the most dramatic events in criminal history. N. B. Chavez, Eduardo Perez, Miguel Peralta, Francisco Rodriguez and Ramon Villalobos donned their clothes that day. It seemed that their long fight against the extreme penalty had ended in defeat. The gallows was ready, the witnesses assembled in the tower where the five were to be hanged. A desperate last minute battle to save them was raging all over the state. The pardon board, which had power of life and death over them, was appealed to, at first in vain. Secretary Bryan and General Francisco Villa asked mercy for them—the latter on the ground that they had not received fair trials. Federal Judge Sawtells refused a writ of habeas corpus for the five, and denied their lawyers the right of appeal from his decision. When it seemed that every device had failed the pardon board weakened and granted the nine weeks' reprieve.

The fact that the pardon and reprieve power was vested exclusively in this board was due to the fact that Governor Hunt made a strenuous campaign in favor of a constitutional amendment abolishing the gallows from Arizona. The voters turned against him on that issue. Although they elected him, they rejected his pet amendment, and instead adopted one stripping him of his pardon and reprieve power and giving it to the board of three.

Shortly after his first inauguration February 14, 1912, Hunt announced his opposition to capital punishment and proposed to eliminate it from his state. He emphasized this stand by replying from time to time, the murderers then under sentence of death. This created dissatisfaction throughout Arizona. Pending the next election when the anti-capital punishment amendment was to be voted on, Hunt continued his policy of reprieving each slayer when his execution date came near. He stumped the state declaring he cared more for the abolition of hanging than for his own re-election.

When the voters went against it, Hunt fought the new amendment in the lower courts, was defeated, went to the supreme court, and was again defeated. So he was deprived of his pardon power and the condemned men were apparently helpless.

The pardon board met and fixed the death date. With two weeks in which to work, Hunt and his friends started a new fight against the execution. Ministers discussed the case in the pulpits, all kinds of organizations passed resolutions either favoring or condemning what some termed "legalized murder." Leagues were formed, petitions circulated. Hunt appealed to the New York newspapers, and the publicity they gave his cause brought such a huge volume of protests to the pardon board that a staff of clerks was employed to handle the mail. Great pressure was brought to bear on C. O. Case, superintendent of public instruction, and Frank Trot, both members of the board. They wavered, but finally stood firm. Wiley E. Jones, attorney general and third member of the board, always stood pat.

The legislature was appealed to—the house adopted a memorial against the executions. Then, the day before the hanging, came the intervention of Bryan and the rapid fire series of events leading up to the last minute reprieve.

Following is a history of the cases of the five condemned men: N. B. Chavez was a miner at Jerome in Yavapai county. He engaged in an altercation with Charles King, the marshal at Jerome, and a deputy sheriff of the county whom he shot and killed. The murder occurred on August 27, 1910. Chavez was found guilty on January 9, 1911 and sentenced to hang on March 17, 1911. He appealed from the judgment of the lower court. The supreme court sustained the judgment and Chavez was re-sentenced. In the meantime the Hunt regime began with its policy of reprieve. Chavez has been in Florence prison over four years. Previous to his conviction of murder he served a term for a felony.

Eduardo Perez killed Felicia Chacon at Congress Junction in Yavapai county November 18, 1910. He was found guilty December 30, 1910, and sentenced to hang April 21, 1911. He was reprieved and July 31, 1911 was granted a new trial. He was again found guilty and appealed to the supreme court which sustained the judgment of the lower court. This also carried this case into the Hunt administration which commenced in the spring of 1912. Perez is 20 years old.

Miguel Peralta killed his former wife and her Mexican consort at Jerome, in Yavapai county, June 29, 1912. He pleaded guilty, and after the court examined eight witnesses who testified to the cold blooded premeditation of the crime he was sentenced to be hanged October 11, 1912. He has been reprieved from time to time by Governor Hunt, has never denied his guilt and never appealed his case.

Francisco Rodriguez is the only one of the five who was born in this country. He is a native of Tucson, 33 years old, and a plumber by trade. He came to Phoenix in 1911 and on April 2, quarrelled with his wife and slew her. A jury promptly found him guilty and he was sentenced to be hanged July 24, 1911. Ramon Villalobos with others was suspected of theft and inciting a riot at Ray, a mining camp in Final county in October 1914. The gang of which he was a member was pursued by a posse, and Villalobos shot and killed constable Phineas Brown. He was convicted of murder and sentenced to be hanged January 8, 1915. On that date Warden Sims refused to carry out the execution on the ground that the newly created board of pardons had not yet passed upon his case. The prisoner was re-sentenced to be hanged on March 19, 1915, and was reprieved with the other four until May 28, 1915. Sims was investigated and censured by a committee of the legislature for his failure to carry out the execution on the date fixed.

trial proceedings as means of settling labor disputes," said an official today, "and you'll find that labor has triumphed in extremely few of them. Take for instance the ruling at Indianapolis in the traction strike of 1913. The men submitted to arbitration after a fight. When the award was handed down the men got an infinitely small raise in wages and a slap in the face in the way of the open shop. The company was admonished and directed to show no discrimination against the men because of their affiliations with the union. The company has never lived up to the award, and the men are tied down by contract, by court injunctions and what not from striking again."

"Arbitration received a hard blow then. It received a much harder blow in the trainmen ruling, and now if the men are again defeated, after maintaining one of the most peaceful strikes in the history of this country it will be the death knell of arbitration."

"The principles of arbitration are just as equitable, but labor has found it impossible to get that kind. And the proof of the pudding is in the eating."

Officials, however, are jubilant over the way the strike was conducted in Chicago. Then were orderly. Not a shot was fired and only two minor cases of violence reported to the police, and they were not directly traceable to strikers, but rather to their over zealous sympathizers.

"We showed the world how to conduct a strike in a peaceable manner," said L. A. Bland of the labor interests, who sat in the 12 hours conference with the mayor and officials from both sides that preceded peace. "There was no evidence on our side, which is in itself a great victory."

Is Arbitration Effective

Chicago, July 1.—"Arbitration as a means of settling disputes between capital and labor is hanging in a balance. And the pendulum is the present arbitration proceedings being conducted by the mayor's mediation board. The eyes of the entire world are on the dial."

This was the statement today of a high labor official, and his expressions were echoed by his associates, all labor officials, in discussing the recent strike of 14,500 street car and elevated men, which completely paralyzed Chicago's transportation facilities and tied up business for two days.

They reached this conclusion, they said, from their own experience and from observation of mediation in other strikes. They pointed out that they were defeated when Chicago was threatened with a traction strike three years ago. At that time they stated that never again would they consent to arbitration and they bided their time until the three years of their contract expired.

The recent ruling in the western wage rate controversy against the ninety odd thousand trainmen on 98 western railroads was also mentioned as an example. That ruling was declared to be adverse to the labor interests, and labor heads were loud in their protestations that they had been "bunked." W. E. Stone, head of the Brotherhood of Locomotive engineers, was bitter in his arraignment of the ruling and of arbitration "as the train got it."

trary proceedings as means of settling labor disputes," said an official today, "and you'll find that labor has triumphed in extremely few of them. Take for instance the ruling at Indianapolis in the traction strike of 1913. The men submitted to arbitration after a fight. When the award was handed down the men got an infinitely small raise in wages and a slap in the face in the way of the open shop. The company was admonished and directed to show no discrimination against the men because of their affiliations with the union. The company has never lived up to the award, and the men are tied down by contract, by court injunctions and what not from striking again."

"Arbitration received a hard blow then. It received a much harder blow in the trainmen ruling, and now if the men are again defeated, after maintaining one of the most peaceful strikes in the history of this country it will be the death knell of arbitration."

"The principles of arbitration are just as equitable, but labor has found it impossible to get that kind. And the proof of the pudding is in the eating."

Officials, however, are jubilant over the way the strike was conducted in Chicago. Then were orderly. Not a shot was fired and only two minor cases of violence reported to the police, and they were not directly traceable to strikers, but rather to their over zealous sympathizers.

"We showed the world how to conduct a strike in a peaceable manner," said L. A. Bland of the labor interests, who sat in the 12 hours conference with the mayor and officials from both sides that preceded peace. "There was no evidence on our side, which is in itself a great victory."

WHEN a man gets the thing he's been hoping for half his life you can't expect him to give it up. Once you've chewed the Real Tobacco Chew you'll know how it is yourself—there's a big satisfaction in a mighty little chew.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW IS NOW CUT TWO WAYS!!
W-B CUT IS LONG SHRED. RIGHT CUT IS SHORT SHRED.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end. The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste!!
